Week 5 Annotated Bibliography

journalism's

Buozis, M., & Creech, B. (2018). Reading News As Narrative. Journalism Studies, 19(10), 1430-1446.

Buozis and Creech delve into the production, cultural function and epistemological foundation of news narratives, and how the acknowledgement of the conventions of such narratives (observed through genre analysis) can reveal the cultural influence which feeds into journalism's control of the truth. Their points are supported by a range of scholars and appropriate theories, while also recognising some potential negative aspects of a genre-based approach to news narratives. The reading will be useful in my essay as it applies Carey's ritualistic model of communication, outlining how the formal conventions of news narratives act to bring the community together in a collective experience of deciphering meaning.

WEEK SIX TUTORIAL

Academic Integrity

<https://canvas.sydney.edu.au/courses/38595>

1. Which types of resources can be copied into your essay without needing to be cited?
2. You have completed the research and writing for an assignment, but you're not sure whether your use of English is correct for the style of the assignment. What could you do to check this?
3. A friend asks to look at your assignment for ideas in a subject you got a Distinction for last year. What is an appropriate response?

4. You are re-taking a unit after failing it before, and the major essay question has not changed. Can you submit the same essay again?
5. When writing an essay, what should you do to ensure that your essay is not in breach of integrity standards?
6. Your whole class is taking an online exam at the same time. Would it be ok to set up a chat group to discuss the tricky questions with your fellow students?
7. Why is it important to ensure that your work meets academic integrity standards?

EXTENSIONS. There are no Simple Extensions for Annotated Bibliography entries as you have a whole week in which to complete one reading and do your entry. For the Essay component of the assessment there are two types of extension available.

For a Simple Extensions of 5 days or if you have a serious issue and require a longer extension you will need to apply for Special Consideration. Special Consideration applications take time to process and require documentation/evidence. Applications can be made at any time but must be made no later than three days after the assessment is due. More information about the extensions and applications can be made here.
